WOMAN CAPTURES BURGLAR BY 'PHONE

Officer Arrests Sneak Thief Under Her Bed.

CAUGHT AT POINT OF PISTOL

Dumbfounded at First by Sight of Protruding Foot, Mrs. William H. Richards Calms Self and Summons Help-Another House Entered in Same Neighborhood.

"Hello! Ninth precinct? This is Mrs. William H. Richards, of 134 Eleventh street northeast. Send a policeman to my house immediately; there is a man hiding under my bed and I am alone in the house. He doesn't know I am 'phoning and you can get him if you

It was these words that startled Desk Segt. J. M. McGrath from his routine duties early last night, but the voice at the other end of the line was as calm as if she had been sending an order to market instead of telephoning for a policeman, when she was unprotected and alone in the house with a burglar.

A few moments later Policeman J. C. Broderick arrived at the house, where the brave little woman met him at the door. Broderick crept up stairs to the bedroom and saw a man's foot protruding from under the bed. When the burglar saw Broderick's revolver pointed at him, he lost no time in scrambling from under bed, and was marched off to the Ninth precinct station.

Has Police Record, Desk Sergt. McGrath recognized him as

Mrs. Richards told the police that when she went to her bedroom early last night to retire for the evening, she saw Harris' foot peeping out from under the bed. At first she said she was dumbfounded, but, gathering her courage, she decided to either await the arrival of her husband, who had gone downtown, or telephone to the Ninth precinct,

She arranged things about her room for a few moments, hummed a tune softly to herself, and quietly went out of the room. The telephone was on the first floor, and Mrs. Richards crept to it as quietly as possible. She first called Main 6000, holding her hand over the bell to prevent any possible ring., and was connected with the Ninth precinct,, where Midnight, 36; 2 a, m., 39; 4 a, m., 38; 6 a, m., 38; 8 a, m., 39; 10 a, m., 40; 12 noon, 45; 2 p, m., 46; 4 p, m., 44; 6 p, m., 41; 8 p, m., 39; 10 p, m., 39. Lauds Woman's Courage.

"She's about the nerviest woman I ever saw," declared Policeman Broderick, after he had placed Harris safely behind the cell bars. "Not one woman in a thousand would have had the nerve to telephone for the police. The first thing they would have done would be to shout 'murder!' and the man would have run at 8 p. m. yes away. the man found hiding behind the curtains Boston, Mass...... Buffalo, N. Y..... in the home of Patrick Rastery, of 1109 C street northeast, at an earlier hour

The Rastery family had just finished their dinner and had gone into the front Denver, parlor when the negro cook saw a man Des Mo hiding behind the window curtains. She dropped her dishes in her fright and ran screaming toward the door. The man selzed a bottle and struck her a blow over the head, felling her instantly. The outcry brought the family to the scene, but the man had escaped.

When the cook was taken to the stashe identified Harris as the man. Harris has a police record in the Seventh precinct and has served time in the workhouse for housebreaking.

NO INVASION PROBABLE.

Mexicans Have No Organized Band

on Texas Soil. Austin, Nov. 15.-The prospects of any attack of Rock Springs being made by any allied Mexican invading force is considered too remote and ridiculous by Gov. Campbell to be worthy of serious thought, although he complied with the request of Sheriff O. C. Hope and sent rangers to the town. The governor is of the opinion that an armed force of Mexicans would not last long on this side of the border.

Sheriff Robson, of Valverde County, where the armed band of Mexicans is said to have organized, notified the governor to-day that he had found no trace of the reported invaders. He said that everything is quiet in his part of the ltalia, from Genoa.

The proposition is one of the most ridiculous I have ever heard of, and I think the busiess men of Washington will unite in a protest against it.'

"Impossible," was the comment of Elijah S. Alvord, president of the Lit-tlefield-Alvord Company. "The class of wagons that I operate are of the kind that it would be impossible to have a light attached. If I should attach a light the front of one of my scenery wagons it would endanger the scenery, which costs thousands of dollars. The theatrical managers would not stand for their scenery being threatened with fire, and I do not blame them. The "Scene de Ballet and the "Angelus" were played with much skill among the violins, and the ast movement, "Fete Boheme," was a rilliant finish to a delightful work. The Grieg numbers for strings and the Saint-Grieg numbers for strings and the Saint-Saens' poeme symphonique, "Herzwun-den," "I'm Fruhling," and "La Jeunesse d'Hercules," furnished a most pleasing urprise. The programme closed with the Tannhauser overture well played and was skilfully handled by the conductor.

Mr. Hammer deserves more than credit. He deserves support in this effort to give Washington the best orchestra can obtain, and this is the best one we have yet had. The very fact that a mere handful of people left the theater before the last number showed the great The enthusiasm was great, and the conductor was obliged to return many times to the stage and bow his acknowledgments. After many recalls the whole orchestra rose and acknowledged the applause. The fact that a large audience could be attracted to an orchestral con cert without any soloist shows the taste of the public has progressed far in the last few years. The fact that there was no soloist made it all the more difficult to select a programme, and this was a point upon which the conductor scored emphatically.
